Dog torture shocks community

Nationwide outrage at lax animal abuse laws spurs petitions

BY JODI STYNER Didsbury Review

Didsbury was thrown into the national spotlight last week when two local teenagers allegedly bound, tortured and dragged a dog for three blocks, leaving her for dead.

Daniel Charles Haskett, 19, of Didsbury, and a 17-year-old male whose identity is protected under the Youth Criminal Justice Act, have both been charged with injuring/endanger-ing an animal and causing unnecessary suffering to an animal.

The pair were arrested after police followed a trail of blood to the Haskett residence in the early hours of Sunday, Oct. 8.

Police believe Daisy Duke, a collie/lab cross, owned by the Haskett family, was beaten before she was dragged behind a vehicle and left on the road near Ross Ford Elementary

Police photos show the dog with everal large wounds to her head and body, one of her eyes out of its sock et. The tow rope around her neck is a thick nylon automobile-use line. The duct tape is pulled tightly around the and face.

"It was the most disturbing thing I've ever seen in my life," said Dr. Andy Mencarelli.

Dr. Mencarelli had to euthanize the dog after realizing the extent of her injuries.

Her neck, back and pelvis were bro-ken, he told a Calgary paper.

Didsbury RCMP Cpl. Kevin Fischer said, "In my 10 years of policing this is the most horrendous act that I have observed on an animal."

Fischer said there is no known motive for the incident.

In tears, Mayor Dorothy Moore expressed concern that an event like this could happen in a "friendly and hospitable" town like Didsbury.
"This is definitely the antithesis of the spirit of our community, and all our residents are equally horrified by the acts of these young hoodlums," she said.

Since the incident became public Didsbury RCMP, the Town of Didsbury and the Didsbury Review have collectively fielded over 100 phone calls from outraged citizens across the country.

"People want justice and they don't know if they're going to see it or not," said Mayor Moore.

Locally, one man has been arrested for leaving death threats on the Haskett's answering machine from a cell phone on their front lawn. Evan Austin Sagert pleaded guilty in court Monday to charges of utter ing threats to cause death or serious injury and one charge of failure to comply with a previous court order.

Defense lawyer Brian Forstell, speaking for the accused, said Sagert was remorseful and wished he could take it back.

"The media has whipped the town into a frenzy and unfortunately Mr. Sagert has been swept up in it," said Forstell.

Sagert said he decided to make the phone call after being told of the incident and seeing the bloody trail.

"I saw the blood and I lost it," he

The judge gave Sagert time served, which added up to five days in cus-tody, and also ordered one year probation for the man.

Didsbury RCMP Sgt. Kevin O'Dwyer is calling on residents to let the justice system handle the case. RCMP Sgt.

"Obviously we have a forum and system in place and that's how we need to deal with these things," he said.

"There will be no tolerance for vigilantism of any kind."

But some residents feel laws are too lax and are calling for stiffer penalties for animal abuse cases like Didsbury dog groomer Tamara Chaney has circulated a petition from Airdrie to Red Deer asking for the laws to be revisited.

I really want the government to make some changes to the animal abuse laws," she said.

Under the Criminal Code, each of the animal cruelty charges carries a maximum penalty of a $2,000 fine or six months in jail, or both. Chaney called the penalty "pathet considering statistics that link animal abuse to violent crimes against humans

You look at Ted Bundy or Charles Manson, or any of them and they start out abusing animals," she said. "It's my personal opinion that peo-

do this are sociopaths because normal people just don't do

Chaney hopes her petition will soon stretch nationwide and will be recognized by local and national politicians.

In the meantime, the accused are scheduled to appear in Didsbury Provincial court Monday, Nov. 6.

I LOST IT - Evan Sagert is escorted into the the Didsbury Provincial Court building Monday to answer charges of uttering threats. Sagert left threatening messages on the answering machine of Daniel Charles Haskett, one of the men accused of abusing a dog in Didsbury last week. Sagert told the court after seeing the dog's blood "I lost it

DMC here to stay

Dr. Jaffer searching for doctors who choose Didsbury

"I would like to assure the community of Didsbury that I have chosen to be here and I am

DR. ASH JAFFER

BY JODI STYNER Didsbury Review

Dr. Ash Jaffer says he was as shocked as Didsbury residents were last week to find out his two new colleagues were leaving

Drs. Nasrin Maiter and Rafeeq Kagee had arrived in town just weeks before filing their resignation. In a letter to the Review the couple said they had yet to receive a contract, though they'd already been practicing at the Didsbury Medical Clinic for three weeks.

But Dr. Jaffer said the doctors were offered conwhen they first tracts arrived.

They would not agree to the terms of the contract," he said.

"The terms of the contract were presented to them informally many months before their arrival; thus, we had to await nego tiations before we could finalize the contract details.

Dr. Jaffer said the clinic was amidst contract negotiations with the physicians when unknown to him, the doctors had a "private" meeting with the CHR.

"At that meeting, CHR supported their decision to leave Didsbury," he said. He said the Town of Didsbury was informed before the DMC received their letter of resignation.

Despite multiple phone calls to the Calgary Health Region (CHR) and direct questioning at a medical staff meeting, he has yet to receive an explanation from the CHR as to why they supported the doctors' decision to leave.

But he doesn't wish to get into any "mudslinging"

"It is unfortunate to lose these doctors as the town was growing attached to them in the three weeks they were here," said Jaffer.

"They were well-liked by the patients had an approachable bedside manner, and seemed to be good doctors. They would have fit in well at Didsbury Medical Clinic." Since their resignation, Dr. Jaffer said the doctors have expressed uncertainty about their decision.

"They are apparently even considering returning to South Africa, according to staff at the hospital who worked with them," said Dr. Jaffer.

With the help of Town administration, Dr. Jaffer and the Didsbury Medical Clinic are actively working on recruiting more doctors.

"We will endeavour to find physicians who choose to live in Didsbury, rather than just being sent here, he said.

"This will ensure that they will want to be here and more likely to stay and care about the community. I would like to assure the community of Didsbury that I have chosen to here and I am here to stay.

Town CAO Roy Brown said they will con-tinue to work with the CHR for their recruitment needs, and once they get names, he will ensure that the red carpet is rolled out for the candidates

We're sending them information on the town, setting up offers to come meet with us, have dinner with us, and show them what the town has to offer.'

He said the sales pitch is easy because "Didsbury sells itself."

Dr. Jaffer said he is looking outside the CHR as well, to make sure the DMC gets the right fit in its next doctor.

HERE TO STAY - Doctor Ash Jaffer said he has chosen Didsbury and he's here to stay. He is g for physicians to replace the two who left last week

EDITORIAL & OPINION

Abuse laws antiquated

statistics available that support the correlation of animal abuse to violent crimes against human beings.

big red flag should go up when animal, like Didsbury's Daisy Duke, is tortured

In the 1970s an FBI analysis of serial killers showed that nearly every one of those offenders had a history of animal cruelty.

study conducted And Northeastern University and the Massachusetts SPCA found that people who abuse animals are five times more likely to commit violent crimes against humans

They practice on helpless animals and hone their confidence and skills to use later on human beings

Yet, despite this evidence, regarding the punishment of individuals who inflict harm on animals are still far too lenient.

The reason for that seems to be that dogs like Daisy Duke are simply considered someone's property. The law doesn't recognize them as living beings.

We're talking about a family pet that Mr. Haskett was supposed to love and care for.

If he were to show his "love" to a girlfriend by beating her, binding her legs together with duct tape, tying her to the back of his truck and dragging her down the road, he'd be locked up for 25 years

The government needs to consider that scenario as a probabilty and do something about it.

They need harsher penalties and perhaps some better programs for kids who display violent tendencies to help prevent this kind of thing from happening in the first place.

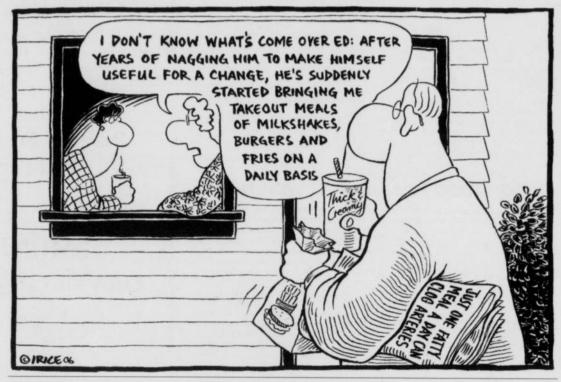

By the numbers of letters and calls received by the Review, it's clear that many people agree.

Some letters could not be run because they weren't signed, but one woman who wished not to be named called for people to show up to the Didsbury Provincial Court building Nov. 6 with their pets for the hearing, to allow their living animals to be heard on behalf of Daisy Duke.

It could be a peaceful, yet powerful

It's unfortunate that Didsbury has gained such far-reaching negative attention, but the silver lining may be that the widespread outrage will spur a change

Short-term, we can only hope that an example will be made of these two men in court and they will get the maximum penalty allowed under the law, lax as it may be

YOUR LETTERS

Take action against animal abuse

As we gathered around with friends and family at the time of Thanksgiving in our community, we learned of the unbe lievable horror of animal cruelty, abuse and ultimate death of a dog that took place in Didsbury allegedly by two men

These two alleged perpetrators found it amusing to flaunt their insane cruelty on the streets of Didsbury.

Their alleged manly act: To tie up an innocent family pet with duct tape on its face so that it could not scream out in anguish and pain and bind its paws so that it had no chance to run and escape from the torture that was to happen.

This being, was then dragged through the streets of Didsbury until its broken, bruised and bleeding body had to be put down to end its suffering.

What a lovely Thanksgiving story to try to explain to our children and grandchil-dren, and even for us hardened adults to even try to comprehend in this 21st cen-

I know many wonderful and caring citizens in Didsbury and community, and am greatly saddened by the shame and anger that they must feel, that some among them should perpetrate such a vicious act.

Already one person has been charged for lashing out in anger at the alleged perpetrators, understandably, but illegally. For this reason I am writing this difficult letter.

Most of us with human feelings can understand the anger and frustration when we have laws (or lack thereof) that do not enable the alleged perpetrators to be at least held behind bars pending a court appearance

Animals, as we have learned, do not really have rights as they are judged by our current law as property.

They serve, protect, assist the handi-capped and offer undying loyalty and companionship, but the most punish-ment for such a horrendous crime is six months in jail and $2,000 in fines to our knowledge.

It is now proven though often known for a very long time that those who abuse and kill children and commit hor-rific crimes almost always have a history of animal abuse.

In recent years we have seen more and more shootings and deaths in schools.

Could it happen here? Who commits such crimes? Here we have a real example and an opportunity to ensure that doesn't happen in our towns and communities.

I suggest we look very closely at this case, don't brush it aside, and don't for-get it as much as most of us would truly wish we could.

Where do we start? We have started by talking to our friends and family and ask ing our children how they see this situa-

Unfortunately, the children of Didsbury can see the blood on the street and must go to school and live in the community, we hope without fear for their safety

The R.C.M.P. have a job to do and I know it is never an easy one, to keep the law and protect every person.

As a community Didsbury has an opportunity to lead by example in how they deal with this situation.

Remember, taking the law into your hands is illegal, but mostly it brings peo-ple down to the base level of these alleged perpetrators and does nothing to prevent further acts of cruelty

We have some recommendations that we will offer and I'm sure concerned citizens will have others and hopefully by talking with your children and grandchildren we can find legal means to ensure that the punishment is fitting of this crime and by example prevents further vile acts from occurring.

· Write and talk to your MLA, and the S.P.C.A. and find out what you can do to change the Animal Cruelty Act, and make the fines and punishment appropri-

· Talk to school officials and find out what safety measures are in place to prevent acts of violence in the school. Most importantly push the court system for mandatory counselling of perpetrators of animal abuse

 Insist that every possible legal charge is laid. For example, what about traffic violations that surely must have occurred when this dog was being dragged through the streets? What about reckless and dangerous driving? Causing a public disturbance? Are their licences and insurance up-to-date? Will an insurance company continue to insure them?

Do they have illegal weapons

 Who cleans up the blood? Talk to Town Council. Is there a bylaw that would make the alleged perpetrators responsible to do so, and further community work, or cleaning up at the S.P.C.A.?

I know these possible violations are not the real issue but if there are no other means available legally, then let's ensure every legal charge is laid and that no other animals or children are placed in a dangerous situation. Thank you.

Sickened by acts of cruelty

I am writing to you because my guts feel like they have been ripped out. I have just thrown up because I heard a news report about two complete losers who tortured a poor dog and pulled it behind a truck. Why? What makes idiots like this tick?

I can't get the image of that poor animal-probably crying out in pain and these friggin' losers doing what they did. I can only hope and pray at some point in their pathetic excuses of a life that they run into me! I can promise them one thing. If there is anything that I can do to make sure that they are punished to the fullest extent of the law - they can count on it. I will do whatever it takes!! I can promise that! Their parents must be so proud! I

Their parents must be so proud! I can tell you that if either of these idiots was my child, they would be tossed out on the street. I wouldn't condone having a monster like that under my roof. I hope that your peers view you as the complete losers that you are. You aren't going to be a hero in their eyes. I hope that a few of them even manage to tune you into the fact that you are losers!!!

Shelley Whalen

We need to stop the violence

I read with sickness and horror today of the poor dog who was tortured and then left to die by those two 'boys' (depraved juveniles) in Didsbury, Alberta. There can be no possible explanation for their cruel act. A pet is much like a child – we choose to have one, and are supposed to care for them. An animal, like a child, is completely vulnerable and dependent on us for everything, and to abuse a pet like that, to deliberately inflict such horrific suffering and damage to an innocent defenceless animal is beyond comprehension. To the friends of these boys – now is the time to NOT stand by them. Turn your backs on them, as they do not deserve your understanding or your support. To the judge and jury who are given the opportunity to try and demand a justice for this animal, send them to jail and revoke their driving privileges permanently (they used a vehicle as an instrument of torture). And to all animal lovers and decent human beings – speak up about this. Don't let this be just a sad story that you read then forgot about. Send a letter to the newspaper in Didsbury. Make sure these two criminals are made an example of. Make sure that the enormity of what was done to this animal is realized, and that the punishment received by the boys harsh enough to deter others from even contemplating such a horrific act.

YOUR LETTERS

Preschool teeter totter stolen

I am writing this letter as a concerned member of and on behalf of, the families of the Didsbury Preschool Society.

The Didsbury Preschool has been in operation in the Didsbury community since 1978. For several years we struggled just to pay our bills and to keep operational for the children and families in the community.

In recent years we have grown from eight children attending 10 years ago, to the now registered 45 children and several on a waiting list

Being a non-profit organization means we have to fundraise an enormous amount of dollars just to keep our school operational and our fees down, so we may be accessible to all members of our community-no matter their social or economic background.

Unfortunately, new learning materials and toys are hard things for us to acquire because of the amount of fundraising we have to do.

Usually, once our bills are paid, there is not much left over for special things and

In recent years, thanks to the Didsbury Elks and Royal Purple and Lottery Funding, we were able to install a sixfoot fence, and unfortunately it was nec ary, not so much to keep the children attending our school safe, but to prevent our property from being destroyed and

Since installing the fence three years ago, we have had our property spray painted, written on with permanent marker, cans of paint thrown on our outdoor toys, windows and toys broken and

Unfortunately, this is why I am writing this letter.

In the past week or so, the Didsbury Preschool has had one of the children's favourite outdoor play toys "borrowed". This Little Tikes Airplane Teeter Totter is rare. It was actually bought for my 17year-old daughter Courtney when she was two years old. She decided that instead of it sitting in our shed, she would let the children attending the Didsbury Preschool enjoy it as she did when she was little.

Well, unfortunately someone "borrowed" it from our yard - taken it from the locked, gated, six-foot fence enclo-

I know that whoever "borrowed" it is probably enjoyinig it as well. However, I have a lot of sad children attending our school and would like to ask the person who "borrowed" it to please NO QUESTIONS ASKED. se return it.

I would also like to ask, if members of the community have seen our much-loved airplane teeter totter, perhaps they could phone us and let us know where it

There are distinct markings on it and we will make no mistake if it belongs to our school.

If you have any information regarding our orange and white Little Tikes Airplane Teeter Totter, please call Crawford, teacher at the Didsbury se call Cherrie Playschool, at 335-8818.

Thank you,

Cherrie Crawford

Bill says if you smell natural gas, get out and stay out!

As an ATCO Gas employee and volunteer firefighter, Bill knows that when you smell the rotten egg odour of natural gas, it's your cue to get out of the house. Bill is committed to your safety, whether he's on the job or volunteering.

- If you smell natural gas, do not use a home or cell phone, light switches, or the garage door opener because you could spark an explosion.
- Leave your home immediately and call 911 from a neighbour's phone.
- · Stay away from your house and wait for the fire department or ATCO Gas to arrive.

PONDERS OF THE HEART

Our Reactions

BY MARGARET FRADLEY

for the Didsbury Review

I need to ask a question of all of us, what is our reaction towards other people's pain, sorrow, depression, fear or whatever they happen to be facing?

Do we tend to use cliches, to give advice or do we sense their deeper need, and just want to reach to in love, and try walk them through their difficult time? There are times we say, rather quickly "I just know how you feel." But wrong we never know how another is actually feeling. Even if we have had a similar experience we do not know the effect it having on the other person.

However, if we have had a similar experience it is often helpful to say "I don't know just how you feel, but I have been there," and then we can share with them what was most helpful to us,.

When going through one of the most difficult times in my life, the thing that helped most was when someone came to me and said "I have been there," giving no advice, laying on me no guilt trip, no admonishing me in any way, no cliches but just listening and sharing their heart.

We always have a choice when we visit someone who is suffering for whatever reason, our reactions are so important.

They can help along the healing in the other person. We each have differing opportunities to reach out to others, what a blessing that is. We just need to let others know we care.

CHAMBER CHAT

Award-winning ventriloguist comes to Didsbury!

USA's Magic Capitol Ventriloquist of the year, Damien James, will be headlin-ing the Small Business Gala on Saturday, October 28, the Chamber of Commerce's 4th annual salute to the Didsbury business community.

Damien James has been performing professionally since the age of 12. His first public show was performing at his own seventh birthday party. It was an experience that made young Damien want to become a professional performer. Later that same year, Damien James received a Tommy Talker pullstring dummy from the Sears Christmas catalogue, a present his parents regret to this day. Currently, Damien James has performed clean comedy at corporate and convention events all over Canada and has won many major awards for his excellence in performance. A Gold Medal winner at the Pacific Coast Association of Magicians Pro Challenge, James is formally trained in both ventriloquism and magic. Damien James has performed with Colin James, Michelle Wright, and George Fox. The Small Business Gala celebrates the contribution businesses in Didsbury make to our community, and is an enjoy-able evening out with friends and neighbours. Besides a dance and the announcement of the new "People's Choice" winner, a fabulous dinner will be served by local caterer, Laura Krebs. The highlight of the evening is the presentation of the Small Business of the Year award.

Didsbury Review

It's commonplace to hear that another "big box" store has moved into a town, squeezing smaller businesses out of the market share, but once in a blue moon the Davids of the business world do in fact win the battle over the Goliaths.

Here in Didsbury a few small businesses have managed to penetrate, and flourish in, the global marketplace, turning the trend on its face.

Unique Stained Glass is one of those success stories.

Bill Anthony's combination of stained glass and ## Small town...

recycled computer components have given him a distintive edge, drawing business from as far away as Egypt and Southeast Asia.

His works have become so popular that the FBI headquarters in Fairfax, Virginia even showcases his work.

So what's the secret to his success?

"What you do is you put your foot in the water and see what happens," he said.

"You can't just sit back and say this isn't going to go. You sit back and say 'I want to do this and I don't want to do that', but what I have sort of put my mind to in regards to our business is that we have to try a lot of different things and see what goes."

Local interest in Anthony's work grew when the press became aware of his art and he received national television exposure.

Today he has a lamp on loan to the Edmonton Art Gallery and it's travelling in an exhibit called "Going

Most of Anthony's sales have been through the internet, but he's branched out to reach a larger consumer group. "In a small town you

"In a small town you can't just be a Staples outlet. You can't just sell paper or you'll die," he said. So Anthony showcases his work at gift shows, creates custom pieces for people's homes, does stained glass repairs, and also offers classes and workshops.

"In casting my net out there, I'm trying to catch as many people as I can in any of those aspects of my business," he said.

And just across town, Reimer International is marketing its product all over the world.

The company's concrete mixers allow for costeffective, on-site production of concrete, with one truck doing the work of several truck mixers.

It means less expense and more profitabilty for concrete businesses.

The Reimers have been building similar concrete mixers for their own use since the early '70s and when they decided the time was right, they spread their wings.

"I think there was kind of a feeling that the technology was right for the time and the marketplace was right right now," said marketing manager Steve Filmore.

"I think we always knew, we felt there would be a market and the market was there."

Reimer International takes a three-pronged approach to its marketing strategy, employing the internet, international trade shows and overseas offices to sell mixers.

Making citizens out of consumers

BY JODI STYNER

Didsbury Review

Recent rumours of a Wal-Mart possibly opening up in Olds drew response from local Chamber of Commerce members who would like to see consumer dollars stay in the community.

But even before the rumours started to fly, the Chamber supported a "Local First" approach and it is now cam-paigning town residents to jump on board in an effort to boost local small busines

"It is important for the vitality of the community to keep ess here in town," said Chamber president Scott Puttick

Kathleen Windsor, who also serves on the Chamber executive, said the premise behind Didsbury's "Local First" campaign is that if everyone shops locally first, the spiral will be upward, not downward, and every one will benefit.

before it leaves our community," she said.
Windsor said it's all about being a citizen of the commu-

"Local business owners keep the local economy thriving, they make our towns interesting, they teach us how to behave more like citizens and less like consumers," she

They provide hometown security, friends who can provide what we need in our time of need. They give us alternatives. They give us our town."

That personal relationship between consumer and busiss owner should be another draw said Windsor.

You can talk to the owner. You can learn more about what you're bringing into your home," she said.

"It's become very important to folks nowadays to feel ome sort of authenticity to life, something real. You get that by shopping, and visiting, with your local business

"If we don't have a proper mix of commercial, industrial and residential then residential taxes would skyrocket, said Puttick.

The commercial and the industrial help offset the taxes for the residential, so it's an important part to keep your community vibrant and growing so that it doesn't become basically a bedroom community."

With as many as 40 per cent of Didsbury residents now commuting to Calgary, keeping business in town becomes increasingly challenging.

To make shopping more convenient for commuters, the Chamber would like to see businesses expand their hours of operation and stay open late at least one night a week.

"I have, in my case, so many customers come in and say, 'you know, I would shop more in town, but they're closed when I go to work and closed when I come home from work', so they have no choice," said Puttick.

So at least one night late a week would definitely bene-

"We hear all the time how people wish they could shop here, but their work hours just don't allow it," she said.

"One evening a week will give those people a chance to spend their money here in Didsbury."

Puttick said he thinks it would take about six months for the initiative to take off, but eventually shopping habits would change.

The biggest thing standing in the way for some business owners is a staffing shortage

"People can't find staff to do it or they think it's too expensive," said Puttick.

mean it would be expensive up front, there's no doubt, but I think in the long run it would benefit people."

Puttick said that while Wal-Mart may not be here yet, the small business community needs to be ready just in case. "I think if there's a possibility of it, then gear up now and start promoting and making it easy for people to stay in

Bridging the gap

Didsbury Chamber brings business to the communtity

BY JODI STYNER

Didsbury's Chamber of Commerce plays an active role in the community, bridging together consumers, business and the municipality.

Its job is to promote the business community and help it thrive. To do that, council members have to rec-ognize the trends, bring new ideas to the table and ognize the trends, bring new lucas to the table and ready members for the future. The council is made up of 10 dedicated business owners, five of whom serve on the executive. There are currently 73 member businesses, but the Chamber would like to see more.

Kathleen Windsor said members aren't obligated to take on volunteer work, but whatever they can do to help out is very much appreciated.

"The Chamber council would like every member to help out with some aspect of the operations, an area that needs a lot more work," she said.

"The brightest and most promising future begins with people willing to work together to make it hapWindsor says an enthusiastic force of volunteers is the best way to grow.

In recent years the Chamber has overcome some "growing pains" and developed into a strong and driven organization.

They work very hard for and with the businesses to help promote the community as a whole," Chamber President Scott Puttick.

"Didsbury is a wonderful place to live and work and I think the Chamber and a lot of the businesses that are members of the Chamber embody the hometown feel."

Puttick wants to see growth in the Didsbury business sector, but he'd like to see that growth move

"Years ago when I moved to Calgary it only had 200,000 people and you had time, moving from elsewhere in the country, to adapt to the western way of life, and Didsbury is kind of that same way," he said.

"The slow growth helps people adapt to a slower pace and I think that's good. I wouldn't want Didsbury to explode like Calgary did because then you lose

Company marketing several big-box stores for new Olds shopping centre

Details have emerged indicating Olds may be one step closer to welcoming Wal - Mart and Canadian Tire franchises to the local business community

Documents obtained by the Olds Albertan name these stores as anchor tenants in a 28-acre development entitled "Cornerstone Olds", located along the north side of Hwy 27, west of 65 Ave.

"We have interest from a couple of food stores because I think there are a lot of tenants in the Canadian retail market that see Olds as a strong growth market."

> ANDREW MEGSON Springwood Land Corporation

"Cornerstone Olds will be anchored by a 122,000 square foot Wal- Mart and a 50,000 square foot Canadian Tire," states an excerpt from the five-page

A concept site plan accompanying the documents indicates that at least 10 "AAA retail" sites will make up the development, with 1,561 stalls incorporated into the design.

The documents, which include logos and contact information for Springwood Land Corporation - the developers of the Dodd quarter - indicate that construction on the project will begin in Spring, 2007, with leasing opportunities session available later that Fall.

Corporation, the developer of the prop-erty, stated Cornerstone Olds was still a "proposed development" for his corporation, and that the documents in ques tion were "conceptual marketing infor

"This is very standard in the develop ment industry, we say 'look, this is who we're looking to deal with, this is who we're looking to anchor the site with, and it's no secret that that's who we're working with," said Megson.

"I think that secret got out long ago."
Megson was unable to confirm whether Springwood owned the land in question, or whether the development a 100 per cent certainty

He also would not confirm whether these documents had come from Springwood, nor would be confirm that the negotiations were ongoing with either tenant.

"I can tell you we are dealing with all the major national anchor tenants, that is not a lie," said Megson. He did acknowledge that other

Grizzlys chalk up two road victories

BY BARRY WILLIAMS

For the Didsbury Review

Rookie netminder, Chad Carder, is making quite an impression with the Olds Grizzlys.

Last week he back-stopped the Grizzlys to two important victories over AJHL south division rivals Playing at the Father David Bauer Arena. Carder was outstanding between the pipes as he blocked 39 shots in leading the Grizzlys to a 3-1 victory over the Calgary Royals in AJHL action played on Thursday Oct. 12 in Calgary.

It was a rewarding vic-tory for Carder, 17, as he played his minor hockey in Calgary. He came to the Grizzlys from the Calgary Midget AA Bruins where he was a standout player.

Against the Royals Carder was virtually flaw less as he held them off the scoreboard for over fifty-nine minutes. With just thirteen seconds left in the game, Carder lost his bid for the shutout as Sean Goodwin dented the twine on a penalty shot. In the first period, Carder blocked 17 shots as the Grizzlys were the victims of several minor penalties. In most cases, a goaltender is the best penalty killer and Carder rose to the challenge making several miracusaves while the lous Royals enjoyed the man advantage.

All three of the Grizzlys' goals came in the second period as Kyle Dorowicz, Curtis deBruyn, Shadoe Stoodley dented the twine behind Royals' netminder Dan BaKalla, finished the game with 22 saves.

On Sat. Oct. 14 the Grizzlys journeyed to Drumheller and skated away with a commanding victory over the Dragons.

Once again, Carder turned in a brilliant per-Carder formance between the pipes, blocking 28 shots in recording his third

For the Grizzlys, Jordan Baker dented the twine twice and added a pair of assists to pace Grizzlys offensively.

Other marksmen for the Grizzlys were Kurtis Ross, Trent Scott, and Emery White. Foiling Carder's bid for the shutout was Ryley Hughes who netted shorthand goal for the Dragons midway through the first period.

In four games during current 2006/2007 AJHL schedule, Carder has recorded three wins and an overtime loss. He has been stingy towards opposition shooters as he has posted 1.78 goals against average and recorded a .942 save percentage.

Meanwhile Matthew Wong has strug-gled between the pipes posting a whopping 4.25 goals against average and a .846 save percentage.

Baker continues to lead the Grizzlys in scoring with 19 points on 5 goals and 14 assists. Dorowicz has recorded five goals and 13 assists for 18 points.

Both Baker and Dorowicz are ranked within the top ten in AJHL scoring. Leading the pack scoring is Grande Storm forward Prairie Curtis Sather with 34 points.

In fact, the Storm have the top three scorers with Andre Blais, 28 points, and Donny Boyd, 24 points, rounding out the top three AJHL scorers. This week, the Grizzlys journey to Fort McMurray on Friday, Oct. 20 to tan-gle with the Oil Barons. They finish off a brief northern jaunt with game in Bonnyville against the Pontiacs on Saturday, Oct. 21.

Next home action for the Grizzlys at the Olds Sports Complex is on Oct.25 against the Spruce Grove Saints. On Friday Oct. 27, the Grizzlys entertain the Sherwood Park Crusaders at the Sports Complex.

PREPARATION. INNOVATION. CONSERVATION.

Our next Premier must have the right ideas and a plan for tackling our province's issues head on.

Jim Dinning has that strong plan. He believes we must save 30% of resource dollars so something's left for our children. End stop-and-go spending with a Ten Year Capital Plan. Fully fund Alberta's Water for Life Strategy. Support families. Get rural development right and put in place a land use framework.

Jim Dinning is already known for getting things done when he was our Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Education. Now, he's ready to take on the challenge of being the next Premier of Alberta with a purposeful plan for preparation, innovation and conservation.

Fundraiser extended

Looking for community spirit to 'raise the roof'

BY JODI STYNER

Didsbury Review

Local residents have been so eager to "raise the root" on the Didsbury museum that the fundraising project is now on the grow.

The Raise the Roof quilting fundraiser, spearheaded by Cozy Quilting's Donna Jacobsen and Theresa McNeil, kicked off in July.

It was supposed to culminate with a dinner at the end of October, but based on the "overwhelming" public response the women have received so far, they are extending the project until Feb. 17.

extending the project until Feb. 17.

Jacobsen said they hope to raise $10,000 and will apply for a government grant to match that dollar amount.

They expect that $20,000 would be just enough to put a new roof on the museum.

Part of the museum roof has already caved in and is in dire need of replacement to keep the building operational, something McNeil said is very important. "Kids should have access to history, especially local history," she said.

The public can get involved in three ways.

The public can get involved in three ways. Squares for the quilt are still available to sponsor at $25 a piece.

Raffle tickets are for sale for $2 each or $5 for three, but packages of three are going quickly, so get them while you can.

Tickets for the February supper are also available for $15 or two for $25.

The dinner, to be catered by Theresa McNeil, will be a turkey dinner.

The quilt is on display at Victoria's Flowers this week and will move to Mugs next week.

RAISING THE ROOF – This quilt being pieced together by Cozy Quilting to raise money for a new museum roof is currently on display at Victoria's Flowers and will be there until the end of the week before it moves on to Mugs.

TODAY'S TO-DO LIST.

- · Attend to 990 emergencies. Deliver 43 babies.
- · Visit 4,380 outpatients. Care for 7,000 hospital patients.
- · Perform 220 surgeries. Do 500 medical scans.
- Test 49,000 samples. Vaccinate 840 people.
- Answer 1,200 HealthLink calls. 3,800 in-home visits.

At the Calgary Health Region we all work hard every day to make ours a truly world-class health care system. That job is currently more difficult since the demand for healthcare is outstripping the supply of qualified people to provide it.

We have implemented a bold new strategic plan to alleviate our most pressing issues, but in the meantime we want to acknowledge and thank everyone in the region for their tolerance and perseverance.

We thank our 23,000 health care workers who continue to summon up hidden resources of commitment and endurance. And we extend this recognition and applause to their current and future patients, for their current and future patience.

Thanks for working with us while we work to make it all better.

Finding dog a traumatic experience Chloe Kary retraces the fateful night she discovered Daisy Duke

BY JODI STYNER Didsbury Review

When Chloe Kary saw a dog lying motion less in the middle of the street, she assumed some one had hit it with their vehicle and didn' t bother to stop to see if it was OK.
That was bad enough, she thought, but to dis-cover that the dog had tortured and dragged to near death by a former classmate left her devastated.

"To find out that it was someone that I went to school with and that it was his own dog, it was just heartbreaking that he could do that," said Chloe.

She was the first on scene of an incident that has since sparked outrage across the nation.

Learning the extent of the dog's injuries in the media has compelled hundreds of people to pick up their telephones and pens to express their anger and disgust

But for Chloe, a very real image of the dog known as Daisy Duke, legs bound with duct tape, a rope wrapped tightly around her neck, lying in a pool of blood, looking desperately into her eyes as though to say "help me", will never fade. "She couldn't say a word, she didn't make any sounds," she said.

Chloe was on her way home from Olds late on the night of Saturday, Oct. when she discovered the dog.

She immediately called Dr. Andy Mencarelli, waking him from sleep, before making a second call to Whether it was the cold air or shock that made her shiver, Chloe can't say, but she took her coat off put it over Daisy Duke to keep her warm, and sat with her until the

"I went home and I just grabbed my dog and I didn't let her go."

vet arrived.

When Andy got there, Daisy Duke lifted her head briefly, but still made no sound. Blood was "gushing" from her face and her left eye had come out of its socket

Andy lifted her into the back of his truck, and it was then that they realized just how badly she was hurt.

Once I found out that she had a broken back and a huge laceration on her head I thought, how is this dog still alive?" said

"We were hoping we'd be able to save her, but with that amount of damage we just couldn't."

Andy had to put Daisy

Duke down right there in his truck.

As a veterinarian, Andy is accustomed to seeing caring pet owners who want the best for their animals. When he chose veterinary medicine as a profession, he never imagined he would one witness a scene so horrific.

"It was the most dis-turbing thing I have ever seen in my life," he said in emotional interviews in the days following

Chloe is thankful Andy s so quick to arrive.

"He got there very fast, which is nice because I don't think I could have watched her die on her own," she said.
"But knowing that we couldn't have done anything, that there wasn't anything we could do, coming from an expert was good."

Chloe said despite the trauma of that night, she is glad she drove up when she did because someone else might have passed it off as an accident and continued on without stopping.

"I will admit I've seen cats hit on the back roads and people move them over to the side and I don't stop," she said. "But for her to be in the middle of the road, and for a dog, I love dogs, I had to stop." After helping Andy and talking with police, Chloe rushed home to see her own dog.

'I went home and I just grabbed my dog and I did-n't let her go," she said.

Your LETTERS

Horrified

I was horrified to read in our area paper The Windsor Star of these teenagers allegedly binding the feet of a dog and dragging it until it needed to be put out of its pain. What is this world com-

I would be interested in knowing what punishment was given to these "B--tards". What type of home do they come from? What was the parents' reaction at the cruel deed their sons did?

I would love to be able to hand out the punishment to these teenagers as they sure could do with lashes on their bare backs to feel some of the pain the poor dog experienced.

It must be some type of gratification they get from binding the unsus-pecting animal who has no defence against a human, only trust of its master.

Maybe they should get some training and be sent overseas to burn off some of their hatred that they hold within themselves

A dog lover, Jane Munro Kingsville, Ontario

Disgusted

I read in the paper what those teenagers allegedly did to that poor dog. I just wanted to say that it is absolutely disgusting and I think they deserve to go to jail. Dogs feel fear and pain just like anyone else and it is heartbreaking to think how terrified this poor creature must have been as her trusted owners brutally and slowly killed her, obviously for fun, while this poor dog could do nothing to defend itself. The cruelty displayed in this act is that of two pathetic psychos who deserve nothing but misery for their entire lives. I had no idea there were still losers like that out there. I hope that they know what so many people think of them for what they did.

Letters

In Marilyn's memory

Dear Editor

Back in August 2001, I wrote an anonymous letter to the Review regarding my then recent breast can-cer diagnosis. I promised myself that if I made it to my five year can-cer free date, I would write another letter, hopefully casting a positive light for those who are dealing with their own diseas

I am here and I am cancer free.

I reach this point in my life with a mixture of feeling. The first being relief of course, but I never really ever let my guard down totally. The second, fulfillment. Absolutely appreciating every twist and turn my wonderful, amazing life takes me And the third, contemplative. I carry with me the memories of those friends and acquantances that lost their own battles with cancer. It seems to me that we lost so many wonderful people in Didsbury at that time I lived there, and even more since I have left.

I also write to thank those of you who helped me five years ago. Valdeen for her prompt action and her "pull". Dave, Glenda, Pam, Barb, Shawna, and Darlene for their positive support and friendship. Toby for recognizing my (obstinate) determination to keep managing the office through treatment, which was an important part of my healing process. And to the many others who positively touched both my and my daughter's lives in those times: thank you for being such an important part of my journey.

I write this letter in memory of my good friend Marilyn. In her absence I am only able to quietly reflect upon, not celebrate this point in

Gravely concerned

Dear Editor:

After hearing the news that a young adult in your community, along with his equally violent friend, duct-taped his dog's legs and mouth and then towed the dog by its neck to the point where the animal required euthanasia, I have grave concerns when it comes to this kind premeditated behaviour. It is well-known that there is a distinct link between animal abuse and human violence

Too bad human rights legislation prevents the neutering of these characters to ensure that they never add to the gene pool.

I wonder who they will blame in their background for warping their poor little minds or what excuse they will make for their cruelty. I hope that they will receive the toughest available Imbeciles.

Upset about abuse

Dear Editor:

I have been a resident of Didsbury for my whole life and I have never been so upset. Recently, this past week in Didsbury, there was an act of abuse towards a dog. The people that have committed this hateful crime need to be put behind bars. How could anyone in his or her right mind, do something this horrible? As far as I am concerned, these two individuals are no longer citizens of Didsbury. I say it is time for tougher punishment on people who abuse animals. We need to be lobbying our local gov ernment for tougher punishments. I also heard of a citizen who made threat-ening phone calls to one individual and was put in jail for it. He should not be in jail. He just said what we all are thinking.

REGNER
Hilda Regner of Didsbury passed away in Calgary on Wednesday, September 27, 2006 at the age of 82 Years. Hilda quit school at an early age in order to help her parents make a living.
On April 23, 1941 she married Emil Regner and they farmed in the Spondin area until moving to Carstairs in 1949. They continued to farm until 1975 at which time they moved to Didsbury.
Hilda then worked at Clarence's Shoes and Saddlery for 16 years. Hilda's great love was gardening and especially growing beautiful roses. She loved to give someone a rose out of her garden when they came to visit. Her greatest love was for her children and grandchildren and she especially enjoyed the great-grandchildren. She was a very hard worker, working beside her husband on the farm and did whatever needed to be done. Her hands were never idle as she loved fancy work and enjoyed crotcheting, knitting, cross-stitch, and especially quilting. She is sur-vived by her loving husband of 65 years- Emil, 5 Children- Art (Bev) Regner, Gloria (John)
Baswick, Richard (Audrey) Regner, Bob (Linda)
Regner and Don, 10 grandchildren and 13 greatgrandchildren. She was predeceased by her parents, 1 sister and 1 son-in-law. Funeral Services ents, I sister and I son-in-law. Funeral services were held on Tuesday, October 3,2006 at Redeemer Lutheran Church, 1500 – 23rd St., Didsbury, Alberta at 2:00 p.m. with Pastor Rob Mohns officiating. Interment at Didsbury Cemetery. We've been waiting for an ambitious, hard-working person just like you. UFA is growing, and we need help providing our progressive rural customers with the products and services they need to keep working hard.

Our Olds Farm and Ranch Supply store has an opening for the

Yard Shipper Receiver

In addition to helping our customers, you match product orders when you help load and unload trucks. You assist in shipping and receiving functions and stock counts as requested.

While experience in customer service would be an advantage, we'd be willing to train the right candidate. If you are ready to take on the challenge of a physically demanding job in an outdoor environment, we'd like to hear from you. An agricultural background would be helpful, but is not required. A neat and clean appearance is a must.

UFA offers a competitive salary, training and benefit programs and an excellent opportunity to grow and develop
